Simple Language in Sepandra.

[From Chamber's Journal.]

In addressing the multidad, simplicity of language is always highly desirable, there being the danger of the unberned state-fing very different (and sometimes very awkward) meanings to the grand and uncommon words which some careful clergranes may be betrayed into using in the pail pit. One of those when in the study and in the an of composing a serious, made the of the term of composing a serious, made use of the term of the white is study in the properties, as to whether a great portion of his congregation might understand the meaning of the term and adopted the following method of proof. Kingrug sho bell, his footman appared, and was thus addressed by his master "What do you conceive to be implied by an estentiations man! "An ostontations man, sirt' said Thomas "Why, sir, I should say a perfect gentleman "Very good 'said the vicar, "seed Ellis (his chach man) here" "Ellis," saked lie winz, "whist do you maging an estentations man to be ?"
